

NURSERY SOURCES

The following information is provided as a guide to assist you in finding businesses that sell native plants or seeds. The information contained herein is not all inclusive nor is it an endorsement or recommendation of the vendors; however, we have satisfactorily purchased plants from many of the nurseries listed. Also, please note that some of the vendors sell non-native as well as native plants.

For the most up-to-date information on dates and times of local plant sales, nursery hours and visitation policies, plant descriptions and availability, etc., please click on the website address for each entry.

To the best of our knowledge, these nurseries support conservation through propagation and do not collect from the wild. We recommend that you contact the nurseries prior to purchase if you have any specific questions or concerns.

General Regional Search

www.plantsourcedelval.org/

This is a searchable site for retail and wholesale nurseries, garden centers and plant sales in the Delaware Valley area provided by the Chanticleer Foundation, Hardy Plant Society/Mid-Atlantic Group, and the Scott Arboretum of Swarthmore College.

General National Search

<http://plantinfo.umn.edu/default.asp>

Plant Information Online is a comprehensive nationwide collection of databases of interest to plant and gardening enthusiasts and students, as well as professional botanists, horticulturists, and researchers. This searchable site is a free service of the University of Minnesota Libraries.

Local Plant Sales

Within the southeastern Pennsylvania, Delaware, and Maryland region a number of organizations hold annual plant sales. These sales provide an opportunity to purchase common and uncommon native plants while supporting not-for-profit organizations.

For the most up-to-date information on dates and times for local plant sales, please click on the website address for each entry.
